The LEGO® Serious Play® process is a powerful way of creating an engaged team that moves with intention. Ensure that your team feels empowered and valued so that they share a team identity involving all the capabilities in the team. Having serious fun is one way of helping teams work as a truly high performance team.

Why make use of this?

3-D Thinking

The session has a fun and innovative element to it, and evokes rich stories to build an atmosphere of trust in the team. When working with LEGO® SERIOUS PLAY®, you use three-dimensional thinking by creating and constructing metaphors to describe real situations your team faces.

Substantial Research

LEGO® Serious Play® is built on substantial research that uses hands-on, minds-on methodology to increase team engagement through story-telling. The process ensures that there is on-going communication and a focus on using the LEGO® models as a basis for deeper conversations than would normally be held between teams.

Break Down Silos

Teams around the world use the methodology when they want to break down silos, include the 'lonely guy' and create a climate of structured play that has meaning.

How will this be of use to your organization?

Team members construct their own models in response to pre-planned questions.

Drives collaboration amongst the team and enables them to explore different solutions to challenges.

There is 100% participation and no one dominates the session.

Provides immediate evidence of the power of diversity of thought and illustrates that everyone is creative.

An action plan or commitments are drawn up for the team to move forward.
